

Amendments to the Abstract:

Please replace the Abstract paragraph on page 24 with the following new Abstract:

A system is provided having a device for serving searches and reports to viewers responding to their inquiries about information relating to electronic program guides in digital broadcasting. The system enables users to retrieve the contents of data broadcasting services, as well as all channels of the program guide information and content information. The system establishes a database and key-word search capability. This enables an EPG service and a search service which are responsive to requests for information from the viewer.
